03/02/15	07:00 PM			AQAP Propagandist Muhannad Ghallab releases a statement about AQAP-ISIS Relations in Yemen	A low-level AQAP Twitter account released an English and Arabic essay, entitled "The Followers of 'The Caliphate' in Yemen ... Facts and Questions," reviewing the recent alleged activities of the Supporters of the Islamic State in Yemen and condemning its ideology. First, the author, Muhannad Ghallab, stated that the Islamic State did not develop and employ an innovative military strategy in Iraq and Syria. Ghallab continued that the Islamic State uses the same insurgency strategy as previous jihadi groups such as al Qaeda. Ghallab asserted that his essay would focus on highlighting facts about the Islamic State's current progress in Yemen since Islamic State leader Abu Bakr al Baghdadi's declaration of caliphate. Second, Ghallab questioned why the Islamic State demands allegiance from the mujahideen in Yemen when Baghdadi "does not have any power in this country." 					the Islamic State's criticism of AQAP religious officials such as recently slain official Harith bin Ghazi al Nadhari. Third, Ghallab asserted that the Supporters of the Islamic State allegedly contacted AQAP, following their seizure of the Yemeni 19th Infantry Brigade base, and demanded a share of the spoils from the military base. Ghallab added that the Supporters of the Islamic State became infuriated when an unspecified AQAP emir denied this request. Fourth, Ghallab criticized the Islamic State for refusing to hand over vehicles, weapons, and ammunition that belonged al Qaeda and to participate in a public shari'a debate with al Qaeda. Ghallab reiterated his previous claims that the Islamic State should deal with the alleged Yemeni government spy, Jamil al Thahri, within their ranks. Ghallab condemned several Supporters of the Islamic State militants for leaving Yemen over the last 6 months and traveling to Libya and Syria. Fifth, Ghallab condemned the Supporters of the Islamic State's mortar attack on the Yellow (al Safir) checkpoint in al Jawf on February 28, 2015. Ghallab continued that the Supporters of the Islamic State's lack of military experience or intentional orders resulted in missing its intended target and hitting an innocent Muslim home in Bani Nawf. Ghallab questioned how the Supporters of the Islamic State intended to compensate this innocent Muslim civilian. Sixth, Ghallab criticized the Supporters of the Islamic State for not identifying a public representative for the organization in Yemen. Ghallab concludes that these facts indicate that the Islamic State in Yemen is "at a level far from what its followers claim that it is on the truth of the 'Possible Caliphate' or even the 'Phenomenon State' at the very least."

The Houthis must go on a Long Journey," via Twitter. The author, Khalid al Tahami, claimed that the Islamic State is the only group capable of protecting the Sunni people from the infidels and trapping the al Houthis in Yemen. Tahami added that the Yemeni people opened their arms and asked for the Islamic State to save them from the al Houthis and apostates. Tahami stated that the Islamic State arrived in Yemen and struck al Houthi palaces in Sana'a with a powerful blast. Tahami briefly described eyewitness accounts of the violence inflicted by the MAR 20 SVEST operations in Sana'a. Tahami asserted that the Islamic State's arrival signaled the "slaying of polytheism in Yemen." Tahami concluded that the Islamic State demonstrated its ability to successfully strike the al Houthis anywhere in Yemen. On March 28, the pro-ISIS media group, al Battar Media Foundation, posted a second statement, entitled "Ya Sunni People in Yemen," via Twitter. 					extremely popular MAR 20 SVEST operations against al Houthi sites in Sana'a and Sa'ada. The author added that although this operation only temporarily set back the al Houthis, it galvanized neighboring countries to do something. The author asserted that these countries start conducting military operations of simultaneously striking al Houthi and Islamic State targets. The author called for Sunnis to abandon negotiation with the al Houthis and embrace the jihad, so they can reach the same level of success achieved by their brothers in Iraq. Second, the author described the MAR 27 battle between ISIS militants and al Houthis in Lahij. The author stated that ISIS emirs led the battle until the senior emir and deputy emir were subsequently killed in the fighting. The author asserted that the soldiers continued to piously fight and defend the honor of Muslims despite their lack of weapons and equipment. The author added that Sunnis have also witnessed similar epic actions by ISIS militants in Aden. Third, the author called for Sunnis to join ISIS on the battlefield and avoid assisting al Houthis in any way. The author listed al Houthi and Shi'a crimes against Sunnis including bombing mosques and the homes of innocent civilians. The author criticized Saudi Arabia for supporting the killing of Sunnis in Iraq and the Levant based on "fatwas by their masters in the White House." The author concluded by calling for Sunnis "to not be fooled again and rally around your brothers the Mujahideen."
